The Reluctant Queen

"Who wants to be queen?"
"Not I", said Ann
"Too much work, too much time,
I don't think I can."

But Nancy pleaded and begged
"You'd be wonderful, so good."
Again Ann replied,
"I don't think I could."

Nancy was determined
To make Ann see the light
And caught Ann at a moment
When she wasn't thinking quite right.

"I can't believe I said yes,"
Ann fussed and moaned
"There's so much to do,"
She said with a groan.

"A white dress to look for,
A tiara to buy,
Photographs to be taken,
A new dance to try."

"Oh, what have I done?
Why did I ever say yes?
I'm in over my head
I'm really a mess."

Time went on its way
The coronation drew near.
The planning was done
The big night was here.

"My family was gathered
Around me that night
To offer support
And take in the sight.

My nerves were all shot
I thought I'd throw up
I'd have felt much better
If no one had shown up.

I got through the evening
Only 364 to go,
Seven chapter coronations
Then end of the show."

But friends and strangers
Were encouraging and kind,
More generous people
Would be hard to find.

Each coronation brought dances
And new friends . . .
"This isn't so bad.
I'll make it to the end."

Ann's year went by
So quickly it seems
Then once again she heard,
"Who wants to be queen?"

Ann's immediate thought was,
"Done that, been there."
Then shouted, "I'll do it again
If I don't have to be social chair."

So another year was ahead
Of travel and dances,
Seeing old friends,
Taking a few chances.

The second year flew by
With little incident or stress,
I made it to each dance
And I could still fit in my dress.

As I pondered the years
I was your reluctant queen,
I realized I enjoyed it
Beyond my wildest dreams!

I treasure the friendships
That have been made in two years,
The laughter and fun
I will always hold dear.

I have learned many things
But the most important, I guess
Is surprising things happen
If you just say, "Yes."
